This document includes the social studies High School Content Expectations (HSCEs) taken from the Michigan Department of Education's document, entitled Social Studies High School Content Expectations (V.10/07). It also shows how Michigan educators extended the HSCEs for the student population taking the MI-Access Functional Independence (FI) social studies assessments.

HOW TO USE THE THIS DOCUMENT
High School Content Expectation	Gen. Ed.	FI	Key Concepts	Extended HSCE
This column shows the original HSCEs. Each HSCE has a unique code, such as C1.2.3. Using this code as an example, <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>C = the standard category or discipline (in this case Civics),</li> <li>1 = the strand,</li> <li>2 = the standard, and</li> <li>3 = the expectation.</li> </ul> NOTE: HSCEs provide a set of clear and rigorous expectations for all students, and provide teachers with clearly defined statements of what students should know and be able to do in certain content areas as they progress through school.	This column indicates the level at which the HSCE is assessed for the general education population, as indicated in the Social Studies Alignment Project Clarification Document. It will either have a "C" for "classroom and district level," or an "S" for "classroom, district, and state level." Only the HSCEs assessed at the state level were extended for the FI population.	This column indicates the level at which the extended HSCE (EHSCE) is assessed for the FI population. If this column has an "S," it means the EHSCE is state assessable. If it has an "NA," it either means (1) the original HSCE was classroom/district assessable and, therefore, was not extended for the FI population, or (2) the educators involved in the extension process determined it was not appropriate to assess the FI population on the HSCE at the state level, even after extension. In these instances, "NA" will also appear in the "Key Concepts" and "Extended HSCE" columns.	This column includes the key concepts measured by the EHSCE. To prepare this information, Michigan educators first reviewed the "Sample Responses to the Focus Questions" in the Social Studies Alignment Project Clarification Document and used that information to craft similar statements related specifically to the HSCE as extended.	This column contains the EHSCE as defined by Michigan educators. It reflects their best judgment regarding how the original, state-assessable HSCE should be reduced in depth, breadth, and complexity for the FI population. Each EHSCE in this column has a unique code, such as C.1.FI.11.EH2.3. Using this code as an example, <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>C = the standard category or discipline (in this case Civics),</li> <li>1 = the strand,</li> <li>FI = the MI-Access population being assessed,</li> <li>11 = the grade assessed,</li> <li>EH = extended HSCE,</li> <li>2 = the standard, and</li> <li>3 = the expectation.</li> </ul> The coding was designed to reflect both the original social studies HSCE coding and coding for the existing MI-Access EHSCEs or EBs for English language arts, mathematics, and science.

C1—CONCEPTUAL FOUNDATIONS OF CIVIC AND POLITICAL LIFE
C1.1 Nature of Civic Life, Politics, and Government
Explain the meaning of civic life, politics, and government through the investigation of such questions as: What is civic life? What are politics? What is government? What are the purposes of politics and government?
C1.1.1 Identify roles citizens play in civic and private life, with emphasis on leadership.	S	S	“Civic life” refers to the public life of the citizen and his/her involvement with the affairs of the community and nation. This is in contrast to the citizen’s “private or personal life,” which is devoted to private and personal interests. Citizens participate in government (civic life) in a number of ways: They vote in elections, serve on juries, serve as elected officials, and help find solutions to shared problems. Their civic responsibilities include paying taxes, respecting the rights of others, being informed about issues, serving on juries if called, registering for selective service, and performing public service. In private life, citizens join clubs and are involved in community organizations, such as schools and religious groups. Their personal responsibilities include taking care of themselves, supporting their families, accepting responsibility for their actions, leading moral lives, considering the rights of others, and behaving in a civil manner.	C.1.FI.11.EH1.1 Demonstrate an understanding of the roles and responsibilities that citizens have in civic and/or private life.

Grade 11 Civics Content Expectation	Gen. Ed.	FI	Key Concepts	Extended HSCE
C1.1.2 Explain and provide examples of the concepts: “power,” “legitimacy,” “authority,” and “sovereignty.”	S	S	Power is the ability to make someone do something they might not otherwise do (e.g., pay taxes, attend school, etc.), and authority is the legitimate use of power (e.g., establishing state speed limits). People authorize power within a society and make that power legitimate. Without this authorization, governments lack legitimacy.	C.1.FI.11.EH1.2 Demonstrate an understanding of the concepts of power, legitimacy, and authority.
C1.1.3 Identify and explain competing arguments about the necessity and purposes of government (such as to protect inalienable rights, promote the general welfare, resolve conflicts, promote equality, and establish justice for all). (See USHG F1.1; F1.2; 8.3.2)	C	NA	NA	NA
C1.1.4 Explain the purposes of politics, why people engage in the political process, and what the political process can achieve (e.g., promote the greater good, promote self-interest, advance solutions to public issues and problems, achieve a just society). (See USHG F1.1; F1.2; 6.3.2; 8.3.1)	C	NA	NA	NA

C1.2 Alternative Forms of Government  Describe constitutional government and contrast it with other forms of government through the investigation of such questions as: What are essential characteristics of limited and unlimited government? What is constitutional government? What forms can a constitutional government take?
C1.2.1 Identify, distinguish among, and provide examples of different forms of governmental structures including anarchy, monarchy, military junta, aristocracy, democracy, authoritarian, constitutional republic, fascist, communist, socialist, and theocratic states.	S	S	The United States is a representative democracy because supreme power is vested in the people. Other countries have other types of governments, such as anarchies where no one has authority, aristocracies where the wealthy or elite have authority, or monarchies where authority is in the hands of one person and heredity determines leadership.	C.1.FI.11.EH2.1 Identify a characteristic that makes the United States a representative democracy (e.g., majority rule, the right to vote, rule of the people, etc.).
C1.2.2 Explain the purposes and uses of constitutions in defining and limiting government, distinguishing between historical and contemporary examples of constitutional governments that failed to limit power (e.g., Nazi Germany and Stalinist Soviet Union) and successful constitutional governments (e.g., contemporary Germany and United Kingdom). (See USHG 7.2.1; WHG 7.3)	S	S	The Constitution of the United States defines and limits the power of the government through the use of checks and balances, the separation of powers, and by identifying the rights of people.	C.1.FI.11.EH2.2 Demonstrate an understanding of how the United States Constitution defines and limits the power of government.
C1.2.3 Compare and contrast parliamentary, federal, nonfederal, and unitary systems of government by analyzing similarities and differences in sovereignty, diffusion of power, and institutional structure. (See USHG F1.1; F1.2)	C	NA	NA	NA

C2—ORIGINS AND FOUNDATIONS OF GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
C2.1 Origins of American Constitutional Government
(Note: Much of this content should have been an essential feature of students' 5th and 8th grade coursework. High School U.S. History and Geography teachers, however, revisit this in USHG Foundational Expectations 1.1, 1.2, and 2.1.)
C2.1.1 Explain the historical and philosophical origins of American constitutional government and evaluate the influence of ideas found in the Magna Carta, English Bill of Rights, Mayflower Compact, Iroquois Confederation, Northwest Ordinance, Virginia Statute for Religious Freedom, Declaration of Independence, Articles of Confederation, and selected Federalist Papers (the 10th, 14th, 51st), John Locke's Second Treatise, Montesquieu's Spirit of Laws, Paine's Common Sense. C2.1.2 Explain the significance of the major debates and compromises underlying the formation and ratification of American constitutional government including the Virginia and New Jersey plans, the Great Compromise, debates between Federalists and Anti-Federalists, debates over slavery, and the promise for a bill of rights after ratification.	S	S	Compromise is necessary to achieve the best possible outcomes for a community, a state, or a nation (or, in other words, the common good). For example, in order to ratify the Constitution, the Framers needed to make many compromises in order to address differing views about such topics as representation in general, how enslaved people should count for representation, and the appropriate distribution of power. Similarly, compromise is needed today to address the issues we struggle with locally in our own communities and schools.	C.2.FI.11.EH1.2 Identify an example of a compromise that was made for the common good.
C2.1.3 Explain how the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, and the Bill of Rights reflected the political principles of popular sovereignty, rule of law, checks and balances, separation of powers, social compact, natural rights, individual rights, separation of church and state, republicanism and federalism.	S	S	With its opening words, "We the people," the U.S. Constitution expressed the principle of popular sovereignty (i.e., the belief that the legitimacy of the state is created and sustained by the will or consent of its people) and proceeded to create a system of representative democracy by implementing the separation of powers among equal branches of government, checks and balances, and a federal system that divides power between states and the federal government. The addition of the Bill of Rights reinforced and defined important individual rights, such as freedom of expression, the freedom of religion, separation of church and state, and due process.	C.2.FI.11.EH1.3 Identify one or more ways in which the Constitution or the Bill of Rights ensures the rights of individuals.

C2.1.4 Explain challenges and modifications to American constitutional government as a result of significant historical events such as the American Revolution, the Civil War, expansion of suffrage, the Great Depression, and the civil rights movement.	C	NA	NA	NA
C2.2 Foundational Values and Constitutional Principles of American Government  Explain how the American idea of constitutional government has shaped a distinctive American society through the investigation of such questions as: How have the fundamental values and principles of American constitutional government shaped American society?
C2.2.1 Identify and explain the fundamental values of America's constitutional republic (e.g., life, liberty, property, the pursuit of happiness, the common good, justice, equality, diversity, authority, participation, and patriotism) and their reflection in the principles of the United States Constitution (e.g., popular sovereignty, republicanism, rule of law, checks and balances, separation of powers, and federalism).	S	S	Core democratic values shape how citizens function in society. The core values upon which this country was founded include the right to life, liberty, property, the pursuit of happiness, the common good, justice, equality, diversity, authority, participation, and patriotism.	C.2.FI.11.EH2.1 Identify one or more core democratic values and/or demonstrate an understanding of how those values affect people's lives.
C2.2.2 Explain and evaluate how Americans, either through individual or collective actions, use constitutional principles and fundamental values to narrow gaps between American ideals and reality with respect to minorities, women, and the disadvantaged. C3—STRUCTURE AND FUNCTIONS OF GOVERNMENT IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
C3.1 Structure, Functions, and Enumerated Powers of National Government
Describe how the national government is organized and what it does through the investigation of such questions as: What is the structure of the national government? What are the functions of the national government? What are its enumerated powers?
C3.1.1 Analyze the purposes, organization, functions, and processes of the legislative branch as enumerated in Article I of the Constitution.	S	S	The legislative branch of the United States government is designed to make laws and check the power of other branches of government. The U.S. Constitution places the legislative powers of the national government in the Congress, which is divided into the House of Representatives and the Senate.	C.3.FI.11.EH1.1 Identify a role of the legislative branch of government.
C3.1.2 Analyze the purposes, organization, functions, and processes of the executive branch as enumerated in Article II of the Constitution.	S	S	The executive branch of the United States government enforces laws and checks the power of other branches of government. The Constitution does not specifically define executive power. It does, however, list some of the president's powers (e.g., to serve as commander and chief of the military; head the executive department; grant reprieves and pardons; make treaties with the advice and consent of the Senate; nominate ambassadors, judges, and others; recommend legislation to Congress; review and possibly veto legislation; and serve as the nation's chief diplomat). C3.1.6 Evaluate major sources of revenue for the national government, including the constitutional provisions for taxing its citizens.	S	S	Taxes paid by citizens and businesses help to fund the work of government and the public services it provides. The government also collects money through licenses and fees.	C.3.FI.11.EH1.6 Recognize various revenue sources that fund government (e.g., taxes, licenses, and fees).
C3.1.7 Explain why the federal government is one of enumerated powers while state governments are those of reserved powers.	C	NA	NA	NA
C3.2 Powers and Limits on Powers  Identify how power and responsibility are distributed, shared, and limited in American constitutional government through the investigation of such questions as: How are power and responsibility distributed, shared, and limited in the government established by the United States Constitution?
C3.2.1 Explain how the principles of enumerated powers, federalism, separation of powers, bicameralism, checks and balances, republicanism, rule of law, individual rights, and inalienable rights, separation of church and state, and popular sovereignty serve to limit the power of government. C3.2.3 Identify specific provisions in the Constitution that limit the power of the federal government.	S	S	The power of the federal government is limited by such things as <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• separation of powers (i.e., giving separate powers to different branches of government—legislative, executive, and judicial);</li> <li>• checks and balances (i.e., allowing each branch of government to amend or veto acts of another branch in an effort to prevent any one branch from exerting too much power);</li> <li>• individual rights (i.e., the right to life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness, etc., without fear of retribution by the government);</li> <li>• federalism (i.e., a governmental system where power is shared between federal and state governments); and</li> <li>• separation of church and state (i.e., prohibiting the government from regulating or endorsing a particular religion, thereby guaranteeing religious freedom).</li> </ul>	C.3.FI.11.EH2.3 Recognize one or more ways in which the powers of the federal government are limited by the Constitution (e.g., the separation of powers, checks and balances, individual rights, federalism, the separation of church and state, etc.).

C3.3.1 Describe limits the U.S. Constitution places on powers of the states (e.g., prohibitions against coining money, impairing interstate commerce, making treaties with foreign governments) and on the federal government's power over the states (e.g., federal government cannot abolish a state, Tenth Amendment reserves powers to the states).	S	S	The U.S. Constitution places limits on the power of state governments. For example, state governments cannot coin their own money, allow people to violate contracts, make treaties with foreign governments or enter into war, tax imports or exports, or keep troops in times of peace. State governments also cannot pass laws that conflict with the U.S. Constitution.	C.3.FI.11.EH3.1 Recognize one or more ways in which the powers of state government are limited by the U.S. Constitution.

C3.4 System of Law and Laws  Explain why the rule of law has a central place in American society through the investigation of such questions as: What is the role of law in the American political system? What is the importance of law in the American political system?
C3.4.1 Explain why the rule of law has a central place in American society (e.g., Supreme Court cases like Marbury v. Madison and U.S. v. Nixon ; practices such as submitting bills to legal counsel to ensure congressional compliance with the law). (See USHG F1.1, 8.2.4)	S	S	See C.3.FI.11.EH4.2.	See C.3.FI.11.EH4.2.
C3.4.2 Describe what can happen in the absence or breakdown of the rule of law (e.g., Ku Klux Klan attacks, police corruption, organized crime, interfering with the right to vote, and perjury). (See USHG 8.3.5)	S	S	Rule of Law means that every citizen, including the President, is subject to the law. (This is in contrast to governments—like monarchies—where the ruler is above the law and rules by divine right.) Rule of Law exists to prevent the abuse of power and maintain order.	C.3.FI.11.EH4.2 Demonstrate an understanding of the rule of law and/or identify why it is important.
C3.4.3 Explain the meaning and importance of equal protection of the law (e.g., the 14th Amendment, Americans with Disabilities Act, equal opportunity legislation).	S	S	Equal protection of the law refers to the idea that no individual or group may receive special privileges from, nor be unjustly discriminated against, by the government. (It does not, however, require equal treatment in all circumstances. For example people under the age of 18 may not marry without parental permission.)	C.3.FI.11.EH4.3 Demonstrate an understanding of equal protection of the law and/or identify one example of it (e.g., the 14th Amendment, Americans with Disabilities Act, equal opportunity legislation, etc.).

C3.4.4 Describe considerations and criteria that have been used to deny, limit, or extend protection of individual rights (e.g., clear and present danger, time, place and manner restrictions on speech, compelling government interest, security, libel or slander, public safety, and equal opportunity).	S	S	An individual's right to something implies that other people have a duty to provide or refrain from interfering with that right. For example, people have the right to free exercise of religion, so they should not be prevented from practicing the religion of their choice.  The government may, however, limit individual rights when there is clear and present danger, when it is a matter of national security or public safety, or to preserve equal opportunities.	C.3.FI.11.EH4.4 Identify a situation in which the government may need to limit individual rights.
C3.4.5 Analyze the various levels and responsibilities of courts in the federal and state judicial system and explain the relationships among them.	C	NA	NA	NA
C3.5 Other Actors in the Policy Process  Describe the roles of political parties, interest groups, the media, and individuals in determining and shaping public policy through the investigation of such questions as: What roles do political parties, interest groups, the media, and individuals play in the development of public policy?
C3.5.1 Explain how political parties, interest groups, the media, and individuals can influence and determine the public agenda.	S	S	For a representative democracy to be truly representative, public officials must learn about citizen's views, concerns, and hopes.  Voting is one way citizens can make their opinions known. They also can write letters to government officials, participate in public meetings, join political parties, participate in public opinion polls, and participate in interest groups.  The media, such as television, radio, newspapers, and the Internet, also provide citizens with avenues to express their opinions.	C.3.FI.11.EH5.1 Demonstrate an understanding of the ways in which individuals can express their opinions and, thus, influence the public agenda.

C3.5.2 Describe the origin and the evolution of political parties and their influence. (See Grade 5 SS; USHG 9.1.2)	S	S	The origin of political parties in the United States began almost as soon as the country was established. People began labeling themselves as Federalists and Anti-Federalists. Over time, some parties have died out and were replaced by others. Political parties link citizens to government. By presenting alternative candidates, parties provide an effective means for voters to approve or disapprove of the past policies of government. Parties promote coordination in government by organizing the legislative branches, and promoting interactions among the different levels of government. This allows for a coordination of efforts in the policy-making process.	C.3.FI.11.EH5.2 Demonstrate an understanding of how and why political parties were created in the past and/or the role they play today.

C5.3.4 Describe the relationship between personal, political, and economic rights and how they can sometimes conflict.	S	S	Personal rights assure the right, the opportunity, and the ability of each person to live his or her life in dignity and security and to seek self-fulfillment as an individual or as a member of a group. Political rights are those intellectual and natural rights of individuals that are inseparable from the common good that the government is required to protect, such as freedom of religion, speech, the press, assembly, and petition. Economic rights include the right to own and dispense of property, choose ones' own occupation, change employment at will, and engage in any lawful economic activity. Sometimes these rights conflict. For example, a person's right to free speech may interfere with another's right to safety. Or, when campaigning for public office, an individual's right to privacy may be in conflict with the right of the public to be informed about people they elect.	C.5.FI.11.EH3.4 Demonstrate an understanding of how citizens' personal, political, and economic rights may be in conflict with each other.
